1. Check the new address before planning a move

Ask verified NovaFiber support to qualify the full new service address, including unit and building access. Coverage elsewhere in the neighborhood does not guarantee service in a particular building. Nova has no live coverage database and cannot confirm a city, street, or unit is serviceable. This corpus intentionally publishes no coverage map or real office address. Existing-account verification is required before an actual relocation order.

2. Request timing and standard charge

Submit a relocation request at least seven calendar days before the desired move when possible. This is planning guidance, not a guaranteed installation window. A standard relocation to a qualified address costs $49 once, separate from the continuing monthly plan charge. Nonstandard installation work requires a separately accepted quote. NovaFiber does not charge both a standard relocation fee and a second standard new-installation fee for the same approved relocation. Appointments depend on site permission and capacity.

3. Handle equipment and optical connections safely

Do not pull, cut, unplug, or transport the installed optical termination yourself. Leave the ONT connected until support gives safe technician-assisted removal instructions. The customer may transport the loaned router and its adapter when instructed. The existing ONT may remain or be replaced depending on the installation design; support confirms the equipment plan. Keep supplied equipment safe and follow NF-EQ-004. Do not move service to a new address merely by plugging a router into another provider's wall port.

4. Coordinate service dates and billing

Support confirms the old-address disconnection date and new-address activation date in writing. Monthly base charges continue through the confirmed old-address service date and resume at the new activation date. A provider-approved gap between those dates is excluded from base-subscription billing, with calendar-day proration applied to the affected cycle. This relocation gap is not also credited as a network outage for the same period. Customer-requested overlap requires explicit agreement; this residential corpus does not promise two active connections for one base charge.

5. If the new address is not covered

NovaFiber cannot complete relocation to an unqualified address. The account holder may keep existing service until a chosen verified cancellation date or cancel under NF-BP-003. There is no standard early termination fee. Unused prepaid base subscription after cancellation is refunded according to that policy; completed old-address installation and accepted completed work are not automatically refunded. A relocation fee collected for work not begun at an unavailable address is refunded within 10 business days after cancellation confirmation. Support confirms equipment return instructions.

6. Appointments and completion

Before the visit, secure building/landlord permission where needed and arrange a responsible adult at the address. Give at least 24 hours' notice to reschedule; a missed appointment or later change may incur a $25 charge after review. Provider-cancelled visits have no missed-visit fee. Do not promise a specific technician or completion date without operational confirmation. After activation, test a wired and Wi-Fi device and retain the relocation confirmation for billing questions.
